Big Data

The Big Data revolution has transformed investigations. To find crimes and identify culprits many millions of pieces of disparate information may need to be processed and understood.

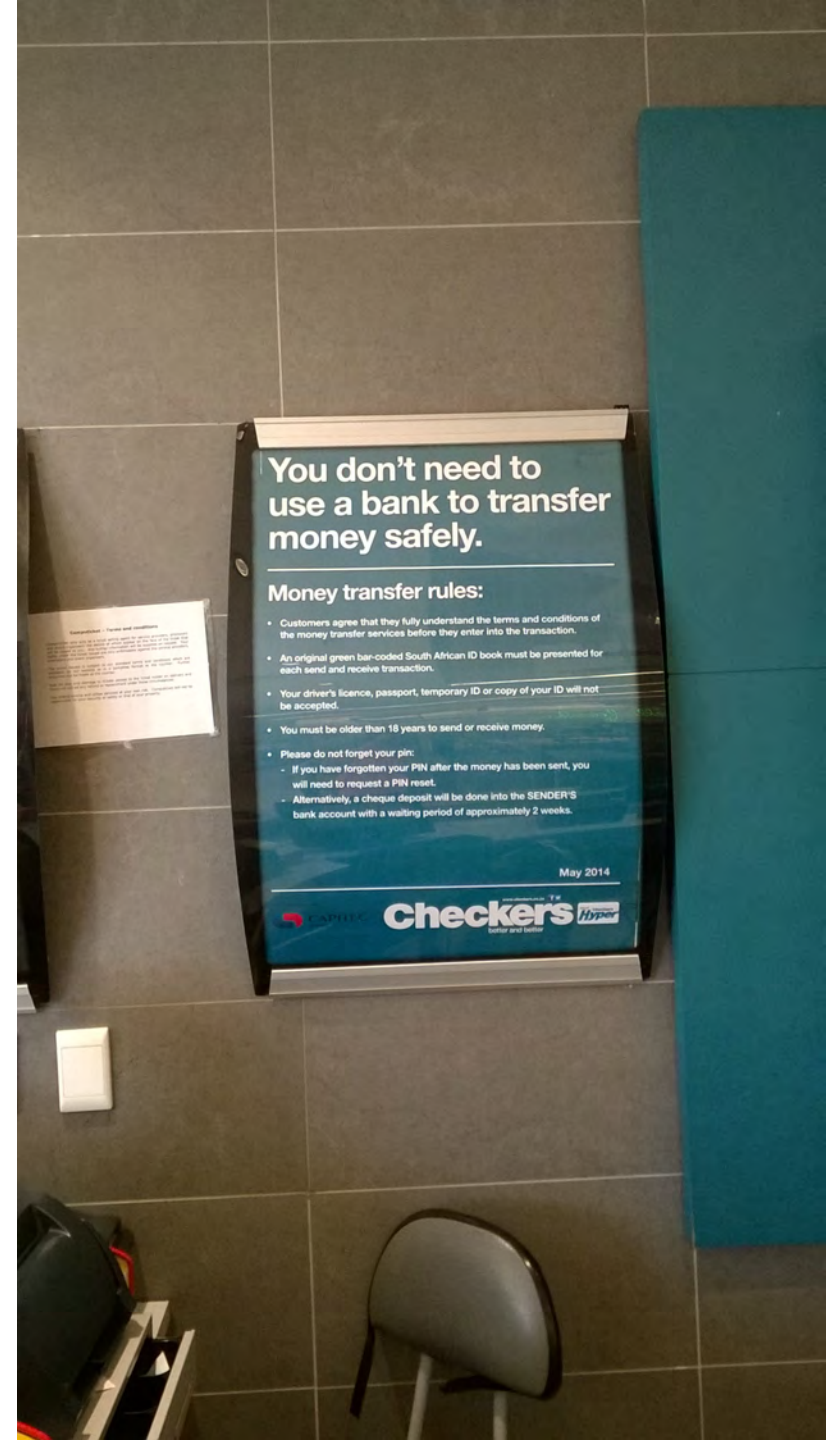

K2 Intelligence makes use of proprietary analytics software—closely related to the applications used by intelligence and law enforcement agencies—to unite and interrogate massive quantities of data of every kind. Combined with the expertise of our investigators and forensic accountants it is an investigative tool of unmatched power.

There is no limit on the amount of information: the phone records, for instance, of an entire country. And because it shows dynamic relationships between entities – money moving between accounts, contacts between groups of people, social media interactions – anomalies and patterns are quickly identified.
